Brief introduction

The tremendous development in communications and information technology has been accompanied by an increase in the number of digital attacks that aim to access, change or damage sensitive information in systems, networks, and programs, by exploiting the existence of security flaws in it. Hence, it has made the provision of cybersecurity a crucial matter and a necessary need due to its significant importance and numerous benefits that ensure the normal flow of work and life for individuals and institutions.

Overall objective of course

This course aims to establish the basic concepts of cyber protection, identify the modern technologies within it, and to recognize the steps that all employees of institutions must consider to prevent its hacking.
